The United States of America Foreign Government Subsidies StockXchange

Overview

The United States of America Foreign Government Subsidies StockXchange is a private equity process where international government subsidies can invest, trade, or sell equity in foreign companies which have substantial international investors either through policy or treaty. As often seen in SPAC with the TISE but instead operated within government policy, processes, procedural protection for all parties involved.

For example, Tesla which operates in China would offer shares both in return and investment at the rate of the foreign exchange or as equity without it to source in other ventures.

In such cases as with SpaceX, The United States of America Foreign Trade Policy for The Space Initiative Project Treaty for Russia and Ukraine Rocket Distribution would operate on such a financial platform to insure fare rates and policy processes.

This operation would be headed and overseen by the Department of Defense, SEC, and Homeland Security.

The accumulation of intelligences is essential for prosperity.
